Designing for Conversion

- To entice your visitors to convert, your site should address their fears, answer their questions, and evoke their trust.
- Is your service priced accordingly? On your pricing pages, offer a range of packages and highlight—or at least offer—a more expensive one than you think most customers would choose. We value things when they cost more. “Cost” may be monetary or an investment of time.
- Whether you are designing your own website or hiring a designer to create it for you it might be a good idea to create a wireframed version of it—a site prototype. This might help you to test and refine the site’s navigation, page layout, page flows, etc. before investing time into creating visuals.
- For user testing where you get qualitative results it’s considered a good practice to perform the test with 7-10 users. Lower number of users might not provide a well-rounded feedback.

Talking about Toolkit

It's Toolkit, not "the Toolkit."

The word "the" should never immediately precede the word "Toolkit," but there are instances in which it can appear a few words earlier. It can get a bit tricky, so here are a few examples:

Correct (without "the"):

Sign up for Toolkit!
Toolkit makes it easy to...
Constant Contact's Toolkit is...

Correct (with "the"):

Sign up for the Constant Contact Toolkit!
The all-in-one Toolkit makes it easy to...
The all-new Constant Contact Toolkit is...

Incorrect:

Sign up for the Toolkit today!
The Toolkit makes it easy to...
The Toolkit is...

The "Talking About Toolkit" guide is included in the Designing for Conversion ZIP file should you like to take a deeper dive into some of the new terminology associated with Toolkit.

Marketing Constant Contact's Stand Alone Products

Email Marketing

Whether you're looking to increase revenue through an online promotion, promote an event, increase your social media presence, or just stay in touch with your audience, email marketing is an effective tool that will power your business's growth. We can coach you through getting set up, help you get your first campaign out, or handle it all for you.

Social Media Marketing

Grow your fan base and create social word of mouth with a Facebook Fan Promotion. By running an online sweepstakes, coupon, or providing a piece of downloadable content on your Facebook page, we can help you grow your audience and keep them interested in your business.

Online Promotions and Deals

Drive sales and revenue for your business by creating an online coupon that is trackable, redeemable, and shareable. We'll develop a strategy for promoting it through email, social media marketing, and your website.

Events and Registration

Let [SP Company Name] manage all of the details for your next event. We'll create a professionally-designed landing page complete with all of your branding and event details, manage your registration, and collect all of your payments through one seamless experience for your customers. You can focus on making the event experience a great one, we'll handle the rest.

Feedback & Surveys:

[SP Company Name] understands that great marketing starts with knowing your audience and discovering what they like most about your business. We'll build you an interactive online survey or poll that delivers meaningful results—and this feedback will allow us to create effective marketing campaigns around what your audience really wants.
